

Macer wall sign with print on panel

[Inside Outside]

Macer is the sign concept of the future. Here and now.

A completely new way to unite wayfinding, design and functionality

The Macer Interior product line is an innovative concept. Our designers wanted to create a type of sign that allowed them maximum freedom in their choice of materials, combined with the opportunity to give free rein over creativity both today and in the long term.

The result is a panel holder whose design and construction create a uniquely light and airy expression. In it's wall-mounted version, it gives the impression that the sign is actually "floating" in front of the wall.

Due to it's remarkable flexibility, the sign system opens the door to a host of combination options - even involving the outdoor Macer range.

Design & functionality

Macer Interior is designed to allow customers all over the world to unleash their creativity and achieve the precise look they want. For this reason, we called on leading architects to contribute ideas to the design during the development of the concept. The result speaks its own timeless and universal language.

Panel holder

The heart of the Macer Interior range is the newly designed panel holder, with its distinctive edge angled in towards the panel itself.

The holder consists of two painted aluminium profiles that gently apply pressure to the panel by means of the countersunk screws on the underside. At the same time, the internally fitted rubber profiles ensure that the panel is held securely in place.

Top fitting

For fixed panels taller than 300 mm and Paperflex panels, the panel holder is supplemented with a discreet top fitting. This fitting can be pushed up and down, thus gripping the top edge of the panel.

For the paperflex top fitting, the Modulex engineers have devised an invisible (magnetic) locking system. The lock can only be operated using a specially developed tool that also contains an Allen key for the countersunk screws beneath the panel holder.

Limitless options

The built-in flexibility of Macer Interior makes the sign concept ideally suited to a wide range of indoor environments – including those distinguished by high levels of activity, such as public buildings and hospitals.

Macer Interior is available in five versions that can be mixed and matched without diminishing the distinctive design profile.

- Free standing
- Wall-mounted
- Suspended
- Projected
- Table sign

On all versions, it is possible to supplement tactile information in the form of raised lettering or Braille.

Versatile in all areas

Including the price

Aluminium

Painted aluminium creates an exclusive look of high quality. The panels are 3 mm thick and available in a wide range of sizes. You can choose between 128 standard colours and more than 3,000 special colours at no extra cost.

The panels are spray painted with polyester paint and tested to withstand even the most extreme influences without cracking.

Etronite

Etronite is an eco-friendly material that can be printed edge to edge in the entire colour spectrum (CMYK), and can be supplemented with a limitless range of text and graphics.

Any text, graphics and base colour are applied before the 3mm thick panels are cut out, therefore the end result will always feature black edging as an elegant design detail. The same detail is also repeated in the outdoor version of Macer.

Panels for free-standing signs

Macer Interior is available as free-standing sign panels with the same elegant holder and foot as Macer Exterior. For the interior version, we use a 19 mm light sandwich construction in painted aluminium and with a black aluminium profile on all four edges.

Text and graphics

Macer Interior provides maximum flexibility and a variety of price options in the field of text and graphics, too. For example, the etronite panels are particularly well-suited to the unique print on panel technique, which allows the greatest creative freedom. Moreover, text and graphics can be applied to the aluminium panels as either vinyl or digital prints.

Paperflex

In settings that require continuous replacement of text and graphics on the signs, the Macer Interior Paperflex model is a flexible and functional solution.

The model for the Paperflex range consists of two 3 mm acrylic panels. When the top fitting is pushed up, the panel holder acts as a hinge so that the two panels can be opened sufficiently to slide the paper between them.

As an alternative, the Paperflex panel is available with a back plate in etronite or painted aluminium.

The standard Paperflex range features models for European A formats as well as versions that can accommodate American Letter formats.
